Petroleum Centre Daily Record.

Pet. Centre, Wednesday, March 17.

What a cold, cast-iron, selfish world this would be if flesh and blood were heir to no misfortunes—if we had not the poor with us always—if there were none to help, to pity, to love—if there were no perils by flood, fire and field—no pestilences that walketh in darkness, no destroyer that "wasteth in noonday." Were it not for these calamities and misfortunes, incident to us all, individually and collectively, the great heart of humanity would stagnate, like the heavens without electricity, or a lake of fresh water without inlet, outlet and motion. The best qualities of human nature would never see the light; sympathy would never expand beyond itself; and society would become one vast, arid, dewless expanse of selfishness.

In a recent sermon Mr. Beecher pitted the devil after the following fashion: "I am informed that, before the commutation system was abandoned by the ferry company, men of property and good standing in society would boldly declare that they had a commutation ticket in their pocket when they had none, for the sake of going through without paying! They did this when the ferryage was one cent! I pity the devil! I do not know what he does with such men like them! I cannot understand how these exiguous, thrice-squeezed men can be managed!"
